The Randolph C. Watson Library will be closed to the public May 15-19.

We really need to finish shifting shelves from our renovation move. We haven't had many student workers this year, and we've lost our most experienced student workers to jobs off-campus.

We've hired replacements, but learning how the library works takes time. So, things have moved slowly.

On Monday, May 15, it will be all hands on deck, working on shifting and getting things in the proper Library of Congress order. Library staff will work alongside student workers to accomplish the task.

Don't worry. We will still have plenty of work to do the rest of the summer.

We will be working on the Hill and Tex-ana Rooms. During renovation, we lost space in the Texana Room. We have to get all of that rearranged and in place.

Pictures that were wrapped up for renovation storage need to be analyzed to determine what will go on our walls. The organ music collection and John Hill documents will also need attention.

At least the VHS are gone.

Time to Order Books for Fall

As we near the end of the Spring semester, it is time to plan ahead for Fall.

We will be making our final book orders for the fiscal year in the first part of May. So if there is anything you want us to purchase to add to the collection, now is the time to tell us.

Send book requests to Kathy Fair at kfair@kilgore.edu. We'll buy as much as we can with what remains of the book budget.

Food for Fines Available through Finals

Students with library holds on their campus accounts need to take care of them, if they want to see their grades, graduate or get transcripts.

To help the Student Food Bank, the library will accept donations of nonperishable foods in the place of fines.

This only applies to overdue fines.

If students have lost items, they will be required to pay for the items to be replaced. If there are questions about overdue or lost items, students can speak with Susan Black to find out how much is owed.

Of course, if you just don't want to walk over to the Devall Center, you can drop off food items at the Circulation Desk.
